

tion is very important to Eric Buckson and for those living in the Levy Court 4th District. Two Republican candidates will face off and the winner of this primary will be our next Levy Court commissioner for the 4th District. We need Eric Buckson to be that winner.

Over the last 10 years Liz Thompson, Phil Tuthill, and I have attended hundreds of Levy Court meetings. I, Boyd White, have personally served on four county land-use committees during the last 10 years. The three of us saw the freight train of development coming years ago and we have seen and heard a lot from Levy Court over those years. We are deeply concerned about the way this county has been governed and equally concerned on how this county will be governed.

We feel local homeowners have become the second-class citizen in Kent County. Some Levy Court commissioners have close ties with developers and in many cases we feel there has been some biased representation in this county. While some progress has been made, it has been on a reactive note and not enough has been done. Opportunities to address the last four years of explosive development have been missed or placed on the backburner.

There appears to be a lack of political will to take action when action is needed. We want Levy Court commissioners to support our quality of life. We need Levy Court commissioners to stand up for our health, safety and welfare. Kent County does not need elected officials who can be influenced by special interest groups. Kent County does not need Levy Court commissioners who count heads at every meeting.

Instead, residents of Kent County need commissioners to represent the people all the time regardless of the number of heads in Levy Court chambers. People have entrusted them in the past with their vote of confidence and now we have lost confidence in their leadership. We cannot afford to reelect or even elect someone who will compromise our quality of life.

We cannot and do not feel comfortable with current land-use policies in Kent County. We are concerned when county policies become compromised by the actions of special interest groups. Why is it that the longer some politicians stay in office the more compromised their decision making becomes?

Kent County residents need to elect people with a new vision and a genuine commitment to all the residents of Kent County. We need Eric Buckson, Harold Brode, and Brad Eaby for Levy Court.

What's been happening in Kent County over the last four years is unacceptable. We are losing our sense of space. We are losing our local character and charm. We are losing our quality of life. We are being run over with inappropriate development that is not compatible with our infrastructure. In many cases we are being sold out to developers from other states. This is why the people of this great county need more people with integrity, honor, values, ethics, fresh ideas, and a willingness to represent all the people all the time. This county needs Levy Court commissioners who will protect our quality of life and provide mechanisms that protect our health, safety and welfare. This is why we need Liz Thompson, Phil Tuthill and Boyd White ask you the people of Kent County to elect someone who will represent you. Elect someone who will think of you every time they step into Levy Court chambers.

Vote for and elect Eric Buckson for Levy Court 4th District on Sept. 12. Vote for and elect Harold Brode for Levy Court 6th District in November. Vote for and elect Brad Eaby for Levy Court 2nd District this November. Vote for and elect Dick Ennis this November for Levy Court at large. Vote for these people and you will finally be represented.

Kent County residents need new vision

With the upcoming Sept. 12 primary and the Nov. 7th elections, people of Kent County will have the opportunity for the first time in over four years to elect new Levy Court commissioners.

Fresh candidates like Eric Buckson, Harold Brode and Brad Eaby have the desire and willingness to represent all the people of Kent County. The Sept. 12 primary elec-
